The Witness :

In the last hearing of the Public Inquiry we heard the part of a recording from an interview which Daphne gave shortly before she was killed, and she was talking about the threat she faced. And the Board asked me to present a transcript and a copy of the recording. What I have today is a copy of the Audio Clip which we had in court. There is the full audio clip but it's a very short one, it's about two and a half minutes. The interview itself is far longer. So there is the recording here along with a copy of the article in which it is embedded online. The article I have made a printout of, this is in the Guardian; it was called Daphne Caruana Galizia, Malta has made me a scapegoat. Its sentenced on that particular clip.

I also prepared a transcript of the recording, I have to apologise that not bringing up a printout in my confusion this morning, I left that one at home. I have asked Margaret Debattista to point a copy so that can also be included in the evidence. It's a transcript of the audio recording which I presented.

And after last the week session I remembered that Daphne had suit Kurt Farrugia for libel for what he had said about her at the time of the university debate in 2008, it is subject - you raised himself, he said that she had ... and jeered and created.. was part of the disturbance. This was had been reported on the party news media repeatedly, her son was put on a loop on the media to continue making the point that she was there as a PN activist. There were 2 articles in Maltastar, one called PN Strategies Behind University Sugary. And another one was Daphne loses temper threatens Journalist during campus debate. Daphne had sued Kurt Farrugia for libel as a director of communications. The case was 162/2008; and on the 14th November 2011 judgment was found in her favour and Kurt Farrugia was find one thousand four hundred Euros. He repeated the same falsehoods under oath in court last week.
